| 1  |    | CLAIMS   |
|----|----|--|
| 2  |    | What I claim as my invention is:   |
| 3  | 1. | A system for processing electronic payments that consists of a bank,                 |
| 4  |    | a plurality of payer accounts within the bank,                                       |
| 5  |    | a plurality of payee accounts within the bank,                                       |
| 6  |    | a holding account maintained by the bank or a third party, and                       |
| 7  |    | a process for transferring funds from payer accounts to payee accounts, all          |
| 8  |    | residing within the same bank,   |
| 9  |    | by first transferring an amount equal to the payment from the payer's account        |
| 10 |    | into the holding account,  |
| 11 |    | and then transferring an amount equal to the payment from the holding                |
| 12 |    | account into the payee's account.  |
| 13 | 2. | A system according to claim 1, further comprising a routine for screening out faulty |
| 14 |    | payment funds transfers from payee accounts into the holding account by              |
| 15 |    | delaying movement of payment funds, for each transaction, out of the holding         |
| 16 |    | account until the bank has cleared each payment funds transfer into the holding      |
| 17 |    | account through a settlement process at the end of a designated transaction period.  |
| 18 | 3. | A system for processing electronic payments that consists of                         |
| 19 |    | a defined collection of banks each of which supports its own internal holding        |
| 20 |    | account used to facilitate electronic payments,                                      |
| 21 |    | a plurality of payers, each of which maintains an account with at least one          |
| 22 |    | bank within the defined collection of banks,   |

21

| I  |    | a pluranty of payees, each of which maintains an account with at least one              |
|----|----|---|
| 2  |    | bank within the defined collection of banks,  |
| 3  |    | an agent, controlled by either the defined collection of banks or a third party,        |
| 4  |    | that directs the transfer of payment funds from a payer account into a holding account  |
| 5  |    | residing within the same bank as the payee account with the defined collection of       |
| 6  |    | banks, and also directs the transfer of payment funds into a payee account from a       |
| 7  |    | holding account residing within the same bank as the payee account within the           |
| 8  |    | defined collection of banks,  |
| 9  |    | a process for settling funds between the various holding accounts maintained            |
| .0 |    | in the defined collection of banks by executing a series of funds transfers between the |
| 1  |    | various holding accounts at the end of a prescribed transaction period.                 |
| 2  | 4. | A system according to claim 3, further comprising a routine for screening out faulty    |
| 3  |    | payment funds transfers from payee accounts into holding accounts by                    |
| 14 |    | delaying movement of payment funds, for each transaction, out of the                    |
| 15 |    | associated holding account until the bank in which the holding account resides has      |
| 16 |    | cleared each payment funds transfer into the holding account through a settlement       |
| 17 |    | process at the end of a designated transaction period.                                  |
| 18 | 5. | A system according to claim 4, in which the settlement routine for balancing funds      |
| 19 |    | across the various holding accounts consists of   |
| 20 |    | first transferring all of the excess funds from those holding accounts having           |
|    |    |   |

excess funds into the one holding account having the largest deficit,

- and then transferring funds from the holding account that formerly had the
- 2 largest deficit into the remaining holding accounts having deficits, in the exact
- 3 amounts needed to balance each remaining holding account.